Davidsbündler Salon Concert Series, p. 43

21 concerts took place at the Davidsbündler Music Academy Salon.

The Davidsbündler Music Academy provides an inspiring and supportive environment for gifted young pianists and string players pursuing intensive classical music training.

Our 60 regular students, aged 12 to 29, are guided through some of the most formative years of their musical and personal development. Through highly individualized instruction and mentorship, we help each student cultivate their artistic voice, technical excellence, and confidence both on and off the stage.

A defining feature of the Academy is the opportunity to learn directly from internationally acclaimed performing artists. Students benefit from exceptional coaching, perform alongside distinguished musicians, and gain valuable insight into the professional music world through interactions with managers, producers, and industry leaders. To ensure that talent, rather than financial circumstances, determines opportunity, the Academy offers scholarships to students from families with limited financial means.

Entering the music profession with the Davidsbündler advantage, our students develop a comprehensive understanding of the realities of a performing career. Their achievements are reflected in an impressive record of success at international youth competitions and on concert stages across Europe and beyond.

The Academy seeks to nurture not only exceptional musicians but also thoughtful and engaged young people. Our graduates embody the values that inspired Robert Schumann's Davidsbündler: artistic freedom, curiosity, independence of thought, and an open-minded outlook on society and culture.

The Davidsbündler Music Academy was founded by Anna Fedorova and Nicholas Schwartz and operates under the Stichting Davidsbündler Foundation, a recognised Dutch charitable organisation with ANBI status.

We are deeply grateful to the many music lovers who generously open their homes to our students. Their hospitality is particularly meaningful for our international students, including many young musicians from Ukraine. Without the support of these host families, participation in the Academy would often not be possible. During the past season, 12 host families welcomed 18 students for 43 separate visits, providing a total of 198 nights of accommodation.

The Steinway in our salon is kindly on loan from The Netherlands Musical Instrument Foundation

Successes Highlights

AVROTROS VIRTUOOS | Ivan Petrenko

In this AVROTROS talent program, classical music talents receive a significant boost at the start of their careers with the recording and release of their debut CD. In May he recorded his solo CD and in the season '26/27, Ivan will make his debut as soloist with the Radio Philharmonic in the Amsterdam Concertgebouw and Utrecht TivoliVredenburg.

PRINSES CHRISTINA CONCOURS

Yulianna Beziazychna wins the Prinses Christina Concours, a nation wide competition for young musicians. Yulianna received the 1st prize and Audience Prize, presented by the Dutch princess Irene. Alongside this she also took additional prizes: Klassiek op het Amstelveld Prize, Muziekgebouw aan het IJ Prize, Belofte Prize of the Kersjes Fund. It marks the second consecutive year that a student of the Davidsbündler Academy has won first prize, following last year's success by Akari Bastiaens.

Student Performances

Getting out on stage takes practice and the experience accelerates finding one's musical voice, especially when performing side-by-side with great artists whose energy and artistry transform in the heat of live performance. Concerts at the academy are a safe place to experiment while concerts in festivals and series give students a taste of life as a musician.

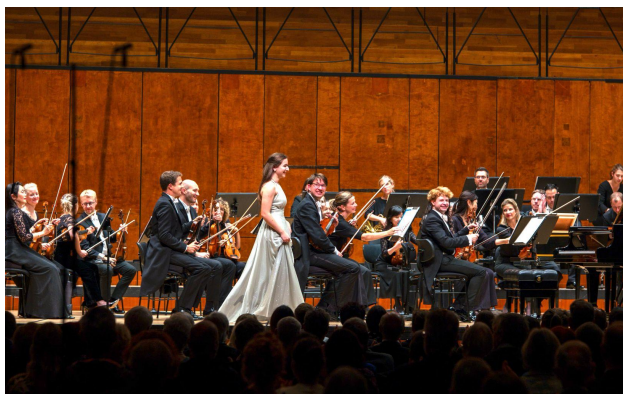

This season the Academy students participated in over 150 Concerts in and outside the Davidsbündler Academy
